BY CHARLES MACKAY. If Fortune with a smiling face Strew roses on our way When shall we stoop to pick them up? To-day, my love, to-day.
But should she frown with face of care, And talk of coming sorrow,

If those who've wronged us own their faults And kindly pity pray, When shall we listen and forgive? To-day, my love, to-day. But, stern Justice urge rebuke,
And warmth from Memory borrow, When shall we chide-if chide we dare?

When shall we grieve, if grieve we must?

To-morrow, love, to-morrow. If those to whom we owe a debt Are harmed unless we pay, When shall we struggle to be just? To-day, my love, to day.
But if our debtor fail our hope And plead his ruin through When shall we weigh his breach of faith?

To-morrow, love, to-morrow

If Love, estranged, should once again Her genial smile display, When shall we kiss her proffered lips? To-day, my love, to-day. But, if she would indulge regret, Or dwell with by-gone sorrow, When shall we ween-if ween we must To-morrow, love, to-morrow,

For virtuous acts and harmless joys The minutes will not stay; We've always time to welcome them, To-day, my love, to-day. But care, resentment, angry words, And unavailing sorrow, Come far too soon, if they appear

FUN AND POVERTY .-- Poverty runs strongly to fun. A man is never so tull of jokes as when he is reduced to one shirt and two potatoes. Wealth is taciturn and fretful. Stock brokers would no sooner indulge in a hearty laugh than they would lend money on a second mortgage. Nature is a great believer in compensations. Those to whom she sends wealth she saddles with law suits and dyspepsia. The poor never indulge in woodcock, but then they have a style of appetite that converts a number three mackerel into a salmon, and that is quite as well.

THE SEX OF EGGS .- M. Gennin, of France, announces that he has discovered a method of determining the sex of eggs, which, if true, is of considerable importance to those who wish to raise poultry for market. His statement is this:

"I am able, after three years study, to state with assurance, that all eggs containing the germs of males have wrinkles on their smaller end, while temale eggs are smooth at both extremeties."

The most remarkable case on record is that of the Yankee soapman, who, in a violent storm at sea, saved himself from death by taking a very large cake, and washing himself ashroe

An exchange, in puffing a soap, says it is the "best ever used for cleaning a dirty man's face.
We have tried it, and therefore we know."

A champlain at a state prison was asked by a friend how his parishioners were. All under "conviction," was the reply.

The Indian Friend. BY JOHN BLAKER

It was a close evening in the month of March that Wilson Parker, a young hunter, sat before a blazing fire, in a log cabin, situated in the western part of what is now the State of New

His long rifle stood in one corner, while the side of a deer and the ham and shoulders of a moose, which hung from the roof of his cabin, told plainly that he knew how to use it. Rising from his seat, he threw some wood upon the fire, and, drawing up a large bear-skin, proceeded to stretch himself upon it for a snug night's rest. He was just giving up to the sleepy god, when a low tap at the door startled him, and a voice in English, said: "Me friend white man, and me cold and hun-

The heart of the hunter was tender when appealed to by the voice of suffering, and he quickly opened his cabin door, and led in the poor, half-frozen Indian. Placing him on the rug which he had occupied himself, he rubbed and chafed his cold limbs; then, roasting some venison, he gave it to the red man, who ate it with the eagerness of a starving man; then, reclining his head upon the rug, he was soon fast

The hunter followed the example of his guest, and did not awake until the light of day was streaming through the chinks of his cabin.-Arising, he prepared some breakfast for himself and guest, who ate in silence what was placed before him, his eyes wandering from the venison and rifle of the hunter to his own rifle, which stood by the cabin door, while a look of dejection and despair rested on his face.

"My red brother is sad," said the hunter, as he noticed the despairing look of the Indian.-"Can the white man do aught to help him?"

The Indian looked up into his face, and said: "The white hunter is kind; the Great Spirit has given him success in hunting; the deer and moose have fallen by his deadly rifle; but the hunters of my nation have had bad luck. Our women and children are starving, and our pouches contain no powder and ball.'

And, taking his powder and ball, he placed half of each in the empty pouches of the Indian; then, taking down the side of a deer, he handed it to him, saying: "The red man shall have a share of my venison for his squaw and little ones." "The white man is kind, The Indian will go to make glad the hearts of his people, and he will be near the white man when he needs a friend.

So saying, he shouldered his venison, picked up his rifle, and left the cabin, the hunter watching his retreating figure till it was lost in the forest.

The Spring and Summer had passed, and it was a clear morning in the early part of the Fall that Wilson shouldered his rifle and started through the forest to hunt for the bear and deer. He had traveled far, yet nothing had met his sight worth shooting, and as the shades of evening was fast settling on the forest, he began to think of preparing to camp, when the sound of a light stealthy step fell on his ear, and, glancing behind, he saw a painted Indian cautiously creeping toward him. The hunter turned quick, and discharged his rifle full in the breast of the savage, who gave a yell, leaped in the air, and fell dead. The next moment he was surrounded by painted warriors, his rifle jerked from his grasp, and his arms pinioned behind him.

As he sat moodily on the ground, thinking o the change in his prospects, an Indian, who ap peared to be the leader of the party, walked up, and looking into the face of the hunter. said, "Pale face brave, but the red man got him now. Let him sing his death-song, for his days

"The pale face fears not death," said the hun ter; then, pointing toward the dead body of the Indian, which his companions were preparing to bury, he said, "It will but life for life."

The Indian drew himself up-a dark shadow of rage and hatred swept over his features-and fixing his flashing eyes on the hunter, said, "That s the only brother of Thunder Cloud. Pale ace, you talk brave now; we will see how you talk when the fire burns your flesh; then you will cringe like a weak squaw. Thunder Cloud oves revenge, and he will have it for the death of his brother."

Thunder Cloud turned away, while the rest of the Indians, having scooped out a hole in the earth, deposited their companion in it with his face toward the sun, and, laying his knife and tomahawk beside him, covered him over with brush and dirt.

The Indians, ten in number, now made preparations for camping. Gathering together some wood, they made a large fire, and tying their prisoner between two sapling in such a manner that escape was impossible, then leaving two of their number to watch, the rest were soon sound predominant passion in the savage breast, his prospects were dark indeed for well he knew that Thunder Cloud would gratify that passion as far as he was able

But he determined to die like a brave mano nerve himself to stand the tomahawk, and thus win admiration from his savage foes.

The night seemed long to the hunter, but soon as the light of day began to break through the forest, his captors were up preparing for their march. Some dried venison, which they carried in their pouches, of which they gave the hunter a small quantity, served them for breakfast, and soon they were on their way toward the villages of the tribe.

All day they traveled, stopping and camping at night, and about noon the next day they arrived at their village. The prisoner was received with shouts of derision. The women and childdren gathered around, throwing stones and dirt, and calling him all the odious epithets contained in their vocabulary.

The warriors led their prisoner through the village till they arrived in sight of the council house. Here were two lines of Indians, armed with sticks, clubs, and tomahawks. The hunter was taken to the head of his foes, when an Indian drew near, of a tall and commanding figure. Speaking a few words with those having charge of the prisoner, he led the way toward the council house, followed by the natives.

Onoomiak, for such was the name of the chief, waited till they had gathered around him, then casting his eyes over them, he addressed them as follows:

"Warriors! do you not remember when the Great Spirit frowned upon us-our squaws and little ones were starving, our rifles were empty, and there was no powder and ball in our pouches? Then it was that Onoomiak took his empty rifle, and started toward the settlements of the whites, hoping to procure powder and ball for himself and you. Weak and cold from long fasting, he traveled on, the Great Spirit guiding his footsteps to the cabin of the white man.-The pale-faced hunter was kind: he called the red man brother, warmed and fed him, gave him nowder and hall for his rifle and venisor wife and little ones.

"Warriors! Onoomiak has not forgotten the white hunter; he is your prisoner, but he must go free!" Onoomiak stopped speaking, while Thunder

Cloud arose, and looking at the prisoner, said : "The life of the white man is mine; I demand t for the life of my brother, who fell by his

"Did not the squaw and little ones of Thunder Cloud eat of the venison of the white man?-Did not he use the powder and ball of the hunter to procure food for himself?" said the chief.

"The Great Spirit put the deer and bear in the wood for his red children," said Thunder Cloud; "the white man has no right on our nunting grounds-Thunder Cloud must have his revenge!

"And Thunder Cloud shall have revenge, said Onoomiak, stamping his foot with rage as he noticed the flashing eyes of his warriors, for Thunder Cloud had touched a chord which aroused the fire of hatred in their breast toward the white man. "Let him bring his tomahawk, rifle, and knife, and he shall revenge the death of his brother."

By order of the chief one of the Indians brought the rifle and equipments of the hunter, and as he placed them in his hand, Onoomiak

"White man, I am the Indian whom you warmed and fed when the days were cold. You gave me of your venison, and I would set you free; but the heart of Thunder Cloud is full of revenge, and he demands your life for that of his brother. He is brave and cunning. If your arm is strong, and your heart brave, you may vet go free. If not you shall die like a warrior."

Thunder Cloud now appeared. The chief examined the rifles to see that they were empty: then placing the white man and the Indian about fifteen yards apart, bid Thunder Cloud take his

Both parties began loading their rifles .. But was not the intention of the Indian to run the risk of a shot. Watching his opportunity, he slipped his tomahawk from his belt, dropped his rifle, and sprang toward his foe. But the hunter's eye was on him. Stepping back, he threw his rifle sideways, sending the tomahawk whirling from the grasp of the red man.

Before the Indian could recover from the ef fect of the blow, the hunter sprang upon him and bore him to the ground; catching with his left hand the scalplock of his foe, he drew his knife, and raised it as though he would plunge t into his throat. Then, as though changing his intention, he rose to his feet, saying: "Let the red man keep his life for that of tood leaning on his rifle, and said : "The white man is free to go to his cabin.

Let him not forgot Oncomiak." Wilson thanked the chief, and shouldering his rifle, he started for his cabin, where he found all as he had left it. Feeling that it was not safe to stay here now that the Indians were hostile, and fearing that he might be captured by a Thunder Cloud brooded over his defeat, and soon after, when a war party was formed to go against the Catawbas, he joined them. They were met in the forest by their foes. The parties were about equal. Thunder Cloud determined to retreive his name, fought with desperation. At last the Catawbas fled : but Thunder Cloud was dead. His comrades found him clutching even in death the bloody scalp which he had severed from the head of an enemy.

The Lawrence Steam Engine.

The trial of the Steam Engine built at Law rence, by Messrs. Bean & Scott, came off on Monday, June 28th. From the Boston Herald we take an account of it:

"The machine was brought upon the trial ground at 9 o'clock, when a fire of shavings and light pine wood was lighted under her. In eleven and one-half minutes the pumps were started, with a steam pressure of 60 lbs., and the machine commenced playing through three lines of hose, each 25 feet in length, with pipes of one inch nozzle. The result was that the three streams, playing perpendicularly, reached a height between 135 and 140 feet. At 23 minutes after 9 o'clock, the pressure of steam had increased to 70 lbs. and the pump pressure 55 lbs., when a fourth stream was put on. In five minutes the pressure had increased to 120 lbs. with the furnace door open, and the steam escaping quite freely from the safety valve. The four streams reached a perpendicular height of 137 feet. Playing horizontally, two streams

152 feet each, and two 162 feet each. At the second trial two lines of hose, 50 feet each, with pipes of 1 1-4 inch nozzles, were used. The playing commenced at 40 minutes past 9 o'clock. with 121 lbs. steam and a pump pressure of 70 lbs. At 9:45, the machine working with 90 lbs. pressure, and making 200 revolutions per minute, one of the streams got away from the engineer in charge of it, when the hose crooked up like a serpent and burst, upsetting several of the spectators. The result of that playing was not ascertained owing to this At 9.58 the machine playing, with 120 lbs, steam and 85 lbs, pressure on the pump, through two lengths of hose, one of 120 feet, with 1 inch nozzle, and the other, 125 feet, with 1 1-4 inch nozzle. In one minute and a half the pump pressure increased to 130 lbs., the engine now making 240 revolutions per minute, flue doors open, and steam blowing off freely, when the hose burst. The result of this trial was that both streams now threw, horizontally, a distance of 192 feet, 6 inches.

At the third trial, while the engine was workng under a pressure of 120 lbs. of steam, and 95 lbs. pressure on the pumps, the hose burst, and no result was taken. At the fourth and last trial, with 120 lbs. of steam and 145 lbs. pump pressure, the engine played, through 135 feet of hose and 1 1-2 inch nozzle, a horizontal stream of 98 feet.

The engineers present were all much pleased as well as greatly surprised at the power of the new engine and the ease with which it worked. The dimensions of the machine are as follows Length 14 feet, height 8 feet 6 inches, width feet, diameter of steam cylinders, 9 inches water cylinder, 6 inches with 14 inch stroke.-Its weight is about four tons, and can be easily drawn by two horses. At a trial of the same machine a few days ago it filled a tank holding 1600 gallons, playing through one line of hose, in 3 1-4 minutes; and with four line of hose, in 2 1-2 minutes."

PLAYING FINE POINTS .- A couple of weeks ago, two friends of mine, from Connecticut, came to pay me a visit in return for one of mine to them and as they treated me very well while there, thought I would return the compliment, and show them some of "the sights" here. After visiting several places, having a few private drinks, and seeing some wonderful things, I made up my mind to take them to a private resort where the boys played "anty." A game was going on in the back room when we arrived. Two of the players I was acquainted with-the other two were strangers. After watching the game some time, in hopes that two good hands would fall out together, so that my country friends could see some betting, acquaintance No. 1 had a full (three aces and two queens) dealt to him which he passed for a bite, and acquaintance No. 2 chipped. It came around to No. 1, and he went one dollar better, No. 2 saw that, and went two dollars more. No. 1, in a whisper, said he had no more money, but if I would play his hand he would be willing to divide all we made. With the air of a professor I took his seat, gave a wink at my country friends, as much as to say, "see how I can play fire points on the boys, and report the same when you get home," ran my cards over to see that they were all right, and went five dollars more than No. 2. He shoved up the dust, and came ten dollars better than me. I had only eight dollars left, so I berrowed two dollars from one of my friends and called. He quiety laid four deuces on the table, and asked if they were good. I felt myself sliding and made a grand rush for the door. As I was going out, the bartender said the boys had rung in a deck on me. That was a finisher, because I had considered myself too sharp to be bit that way. I hurried my friends home, passed a sleepless night, and was very glad to learn that they in tended to start for Connecticut perfectly satisfied It will be some time before I play fine points on anyone again. That's a safe bet.

How He Was Cured.

A New York paper has the following: One of the greatest nuisances to which me-hanics are subjected, is the insolence of young clerks employed by the firms for which they nanufacture. These young men having arrived at the dignity of head errand-boy, will go into workshop, and fret, and fume and bluster, as able the weight of the universe was resting upon their single shoulders, or time itself stand still n its course, unless they show off their authoriand importance. If all employers would treat this class of bipeds as an eminent bookpinder of Boston recently did, the nuisance would be speedily abated. The celebrated pubshing house of Ticknor & Co. had one of these animals in their employ, whose multifarious duies led him several times each day to the bindery where the work of his employers was done. At a time when any new work was in course of publication, he would rush into the bindery in reat haste, looking like the frog in the fable, suffed to twice his ordinary size by a proud conciousness of his own importance, or, to use an old-fashioned expression, he would be "too big for his breeches." At the time when Longfelw's beautiful poem of "Hiawatha" was in the inder's hands, he came into the shop, looking as if he was invested with more than his usual amount of dignity, and upsetting two or three of the shopboys in his progress, he strode up to the proprietor's desk.

"How's this, sir," he said, addressing the leman; "you promised us two hundred f Hiawatha at nine o'clock this morning, and now it is eleven, and they are not yet delivered.

I suppose they are not ready yet?" "I havn't sent them yet," answered the proprietor, in a tone calculated to soothe the wrath f the man of importance; "but they will be ready at three o'clock this afternoon. I am very sorry to disappoint you, but we have not een able to get them out."

"Well, never mind," returned the young man, with a most patronizing air; "let me have them at that time, and I won't say anything about it. But don't disappoint me again, for you do it altogether too often."

"I'll try not to do so again," was the answer, as the young man took his leave

The binder resumed the writing of his letters, vith a merry smile playing around the corners of his mouth, for he enjoyed the interview exceedingly. Three o'clock came and passed .-The books were not sent. Four o'clock-and the young gentleman rushed into the shop, al most breathless with excitement.

"Well, I declare," exclaimed he, confronting he proprietor, "this is too bad. You have dis appointed me again, and I don't know what I m to do. Our business is all disarranged by our failure to keep your word, and Ticknor & Co. say they will put their next book into some one's hands who will do them when they are wanted."

"I am extremely sorry," said the binder, "bu rircumstances-"

"O. pshaw!" said the clerk, "the old story again. I tell you, sir, I must have the books in an hour, or you will hear about it."

"You shall have them," was the answer, very numbly given, "without fail But" and a sly twinkle sparkled in his eye, "I would advise you, as soon as you return to the store, to discharge Messrs. Ticknor & Co., for I would not, f I were you, keep any one in my employ, who gave orders contrary to my own ' "What do you mean?" asked the clerk, hi mportance having fallen several degrees. "Oh, nothing," returned the binder, "onl here, you see, is a note received from Ticknor & Co. last evening, requesting me not to send in any more books until I received an order from to that effect; and as I said before, if any of my men sent contrary orders to my own. I should think they had worked for me long enough; therefore I advise you to discharge them."

The young man looked at his employers written order in blank amazement for a moment, and then might have been seen making his way for the stairs, with his hat pulled over his eyes, and his coat tail horizontal; and when he next made his appearance in that bindery, it was in his own proper character of errand boy.

JOHN SMITHS .- John Smith is a sort of ominresence. A learned scholar contends for the universatility of John Smith's name, not only in our own, but among all lands. Commencing with the Hebrews, he says they had no Christian names, and consequently Johns-in Hebrew the name was simply Shemt or Shemit. In other nations, however, the John Smith is found full one and undivided. Let us trace it: Latin-Johannes Smithins

Italian-Giovanni Smithi. Spanish-Juan Smithas. Dutch-Hans Schmidt. French-Jean Smeets. Greek-Ion Skmitton Russian-Ionloff Schmittowski. Polish-Ivan Schmittiweiski. Chinese Tohn Tchmmit. Icelandic-Tahne Smsttson. Welch-Jlohn Semidd. Tuscarora-Ton-ta Smittia Mexican-Jontli F Smitix.

To prove the antiquity of the name, the same savan observes, that in the temple of Osiris, Egypt, was found the name of Pharoah Smithonis, being the 9th in the 18th dynasty of that Theban king. He was the founder of the cele-brated temple of Smithopolis Magna." Successful Infatuation.

Sir Edward S- was infected with the English complaint-spleen. About twenty eight years of age, healthy and good looking, and with twenty-five thousand pounds ste ing a year, he found life intolerable. Especially the female race of England were, to him, unendurwas a Parisian of the purest type. Captivated at the first glance with the Viscountess, (for she was a widow and that was her title), and, himself possessing so much of English reserve and shyness, that he could neither address her personally nor taking any definite measure for her acquaintance, he contented himself with simply following her. She had come to the sea-side for change of air, and was lodging at the grand hotel where the seekers of health and pleasure usually congregate. He took rooms adjacent.

The next fortnight, for Sir Edward, was but a playing of shadow to this lovely woman. He seemed to have but one idea-never to lose sight of her while she was out of her room at

The Viscountess began to be a subject of reremark, in consequence of this infatuated purweary of the sight of such a phantom, she determined to lose him, if possible. Ordering her carriage before daylight, one morning, she started for Brussels, intending to go thus round about to Paris, for the sake of confusing the pursuit. She was followed thither by the indefatigable lover, however, and so she was to Cologne and

It was impossible to be rid of him. The Viscountess at last had recourse to her brother, who was an officer in the army, and who, of course, immediately sent a challenge to the of-him she could not! The arrangements for the duel, of course proceeded. The seconds and the principals were on the field, and the ground was being measured, when suddenly (as was to be expect ed) the Viscountess made her appearance, declared her forgiveness for Sir Edward, and her love for him, forbade her brother to pursue the quarrel, etc. They were married at the house of the Viscountess in the Rue de Balzac, on the evening of the departure of the last mail from

THE ASTOR HOUSE FARM .- A Correspondent of he New Orleans Picayune gives the following account of a recent visit to the farm which feeds the Astor House:

"A few days ago I accepted the invitation of nine host of the Astor to accompany him to the arm, which is carried on for the exclusive purpose of supplying that excellent establishment with oure milk, fresh vegetables, poultry, and otler proviant. It is beautifully and healthily situated on an elegant ridge in Union Village, New Jersey, which lies midway between the city and Newark, with the Passaic running in the rear, and Hackensack in front. It contains some two hundred and forty acres of highly productive land, which is under admirable cultivation; and although it is but a year since it was laid out for its present purposes, it is most successfully fulfilling the designs of its projectors and proprietors.

"Of the several departments of the farm, I was particularly pleased with those appertaining to the dairy. During my visit 'the kine came home' from their summer day's rambles in pleasant pastures and were stabled for the night. Over forty of the finest looking cows I ever saw, and evidently in the healthiest condition, having partaken of their evening meal, of which the ingredients are chopped timothy grass and cotton seed meal, and having been well watered, yielded their usual generous contribution of pure milk, which being put into shining cans, was ready for transportation to the city early the next morning. I forget how much this yield amounts to daily, but it is enough, and more than enough, for all the purposes (and they are many) for which milk is required at the Astor

"And it was gratifying, too, as a temporary sojourner at that hotel, to have the ocular and practical de nonstration of the fact that such other delicate and luxurious necessaries as eggs, poultry and vegetables served up on its tables are daily derived like the milk, from original sources. The poultry department is a curiosity worth going from Y rk to Jersey to see. It has its special superintendent, who seems to be as proud, as he is evidently worthy, of his charge. An open enclosure of some acres, and well irrigated by natural springs, is devoted to innumerable families of valled feathers. geess, ducks, Guines fowl, turkies, cocks and hens rambling about their extended domain, all well fed at d comfortable. At night the numerous football rambling about their extended domain, all well fed at d comfortable. At night the numerous fowls aviary, where the arrangements for their roosting ere as comfortable as those that are proverbially in the same department there is a constant session of a perfect congress of towls cach in her own proper houselst, patiently superintending the interesting process of incubation."

ety while we sleep, and quench the flames kindled by incendiarism and carelessness, every citizen who owns property, who has wife and children, or who loves his peace of mind, owes thanks unutterable. Certain laws for the regulation of the conduct of fire engine companies have been framed, and are being enforced, the tendency of which is to purify the department of the scum which has for years caused every fireman to be stigmatized as a "Mose." and has made many reputable persons afraid of being known as firemen. The Fire Commissioners are applying the test of these laws rigidly, and the result is generally viewed, as a very healthy one. They have shown neither fear nor favor in their decisions; but it appears that, in one instance at least, they have inconsiderately done their technical and legal duty at the expense of one of our best companies. A complaint was recently made against Engine Co., 5, for harboring persons in their "bunk room" who were not members; also for allowing such persons to wear fire caps. The charge was sustained before the Commissioners, and the con sequence was the peremptory disbanding of the company. Persons doing business in the lower part of the city are in a terror of excitement with reference to the movement. The company is famed for being one of the most respectable and the most efficient fire companies ever organized on Manhattan Island. It was originated 1762, and from that time up to the date of this affair, never had a charge of any kind brought against it. We suit by a silent lover, and getting, moreover, "have always gone away from our place of business strictly assured that in case of a fire upon our premises this company would be promptly on the ground, and do all in the power of honest and conscientious men to allay the damage. We are not alone in this feeling. We therefore submit that the disbanding of a company over ninety years in honorable existence, for an act technically wrong, but in reality of no moment, was inconsiderate, as well as as unjust to those who have depended upon it for the salvation of millions of dollars' worth of goods > and chattels Mr. Lyons, the foreman of No. 5, assures us that the parties who were alleged to have slept in the engine house, and worn caps, were between twenty and twenty-one years-that they were approved of by the investigating committee as prospective members, and that as soon as they arrived at their legal majority they would have been placed pon the roll as regular members, in strict > pliance with the law. As for the respectability of No. 5's Company we can vouch for it unhesitatingly. The members have included such men as Ex-Governor Vroom, of New Jersey, Doctor Parkhurst, the present Alderman of the Fifth Ward, (Henry R. Hoffmire.) S Nichols (formerly Alderman of the Fourteenth Ward.) Frederick Kohler, Ex-Alderman of the Sixth, and now a prominent director of political movements in California, Wilson Small, Esq., Daniel S. Smith, of the clothing firm of Smith Bros., Henry Hempstead the shipbuilder, and others equally prominent, for whose names we have no oom. One of our present Board of Supervisors is > now an honorary member. Let us hope that this legally just, but morally erroneous, decision may be reconsidered. Let this excellent body of public benefactors be restored to the rights and privileges of protecting our warerocms and their contents from destruction. They are men of honor, and feel keenly the ban under which they are now placed. The reality of the offence for which they were condemned, literally amounts to nothing. At all events it should be overlooked in the face of a ninety years diploma specifying the best conduct; and what is still more strongly to the point, the interests of thousands of our citizens should not be sacrificed to a mere notion that an example must be held up before the entire department. Such an example (based upon slender grounds at the best.) will, unless with drawn, increase our rates of insurance, and they are alreadr quite heavy enough .- New York exchange.

Poor Soil .- An inquisitive Yankee was stand. ing at a tavern door, in the lower part of New Jer. sey, watching a funeral pass by. At the head of it was a large manure cart, moving along very slowly and making no offer to turn out for the procession. The Yankee was astonished at this want of atten tion on the part of the driver of said cart, and turning to a Philadelphian who was standing by. he remarked :

u hum, where I live, they always turn out for a "Oh, that's part of the procession," remarked

"I guess the folks aint very perlite about here;

the Philadelphian, gravely. "Du tell! You don't say so? Heow!" exclaimed the astonished Yankee.

"Why, you see, it is a very poor, sandy soil about here, and nothing comes up they plant, unless they manure it well, so when they bury a fellow they throw a whole cartload into the grave, to make him rise at judgement day!"
The Yaukee mizzled.

"I don't say, Mr. Judge, that the defendant was drunk; no, not by any means. But this I will say; when I seen him, he was washing his face in a mud puddle, and drying it on a door mat. Whether a sober man would do this I can't say.

Editor Fireman's Journal-It has been and believe it is generally conceded that a person pre siding over a deliberative body should when so do ing act and decide impartially and with justice -For several successive meetings of a body said to be representatives of a certain department, the presiding officer seems to be a one sided affair, regardless of the rights of any party except his own. duced to make the above remarks from the fact of being present when decisions by the Chair have been given, which although parliamentarian myself, common sense would dictate to anyone possessing that quality the absurdity of such decisions

Presuming Mr. Editor that you are well versed in parliamentary rules, I wish you would give me e information upon the following points: 1st. It when the ayes and nays upon a question should be called two or three times, and a member has voted three times the same way upon said uestion, can he upon the fourth time after voting the same as he did the three preceding times, change his vote stating that the fourth time he voted under a misapprehension 2d. If a motion is made to adjourn to a certain day, and amended to another day, and again amended to a still further time, is not such an amendment, as. "to time," debateable? I will not trespass further upon your columns at present. Your answers to the above will be an incentive probably to watch closely, further pro ceedings and decisions. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26th, 1858.

In answer to the above, we have to say, that if a member of a Legislative body states that he voted on a subject under a misapprehension, and wishes to change his vote on the account the presiding officer has no right to doubt it; as it is | Co. No. 3, C. R. Bond of California Engine Co. to be presumed that no gentleman would tell an untruth for so small an object. The whole matter

In regard to the second question propounded by our correspondent, we have to say, that a motion J. P. Buckley of St. Francis Hook and Ladder adjourning to a specific time, is debateable; and Co. No. 1. the decision of Mr. Biden, President pro tem. of only another act of that bold partiality and partyism, which has distinguished him since he has presided over the Board of Delegates; and which in several instances has gone to such extremes, as to disgust every honorable man; and were we a mously adopted: member of No. 6, we would protest against Mr. Biden's presiding during the trial, for that reason.

In regard to Mr. Biden's decision in the matter alluded to, we will take him on his own ground of "precedent" that is, if there is no law applicawle to the case. When he voted on the question of the Presidency, he voted for M.: Jones, although he (Biden) was interested in the matter, department says no man shall vote upon a question in which he is interested. But Mr Biden excused himself by saving there was no salary attached to the office and "precedents" of the Board allowed it. And again when Mr. Cobb was elected President, and Mr. Ezekiel, Secretary by a plurality vote, and although there was no law of the department, which required a majority vote to elect, Mr. Biden decided against them on the ground of "precedents" in the Board.

Now "precedent" of the Board, laid down by the late lamented President of the Department. Col. Mahony, was to the effect, that a motion adjourning to a specified time, was debateable. This was a precedent for Mr. Biden, and he did not ac knowledge it, because it did not suit his ultra par-

THE TONGUE.—Several gentlemen asked us on Thursday last, why it was that members of the Department endeavored to obtain possession of the the early pioneers of California, and one of San tongue of their engine or truck, when running to Francisco's best citizens; and has been engaged in an alarm of fire. In reply, we take this opportunity to say to them, "it is the post of honor-" It shows in the first place that to obtain it, a member must be, and is prompt at the house where the apparatus (whatever it may be) is located; and in the second place, the man at the tongue, stands | 6, for many years and has served as their reprein the same position as a pilot at the helm-he sentative in the Board of Delegates, for years. He guides her over the path she has to roll, and in his | was elected President of the Exempt Association hands, is the safety of the lives and limbs, of not only the members of his own company, but that of others. In the position of tongueman, an evil disposed person could effect a vast amount of injury, and many a life has been lost by reason of his perfidy to his company and his brethren. After a fire or an alarm, the first question which presents itself, is "who rolled the engine," for he who rolls the engine has the tongue by right; and whoever the lucky individual may be, the fact is looked upon as an evidence of his activity. In New York, and in several other departments, a stricter account is kept of the "tongue and roll" system, than here, and a member in that Department looks upon it as a great honor (which it is) to have the "tongue" credited to him a number of times. We wish more attention was paid to it here, and a system of rewards adopted in every company, for those who roll the apparatus and have the "tongue" the oftenest.

IT Is NOT TRUE-That the Board of Delegates, deeming themselves superior to all organized bodies. intend to take the government of the city and county into their own hands, revolutionize the State, then dismiss the Senate of the United States, and install themselves instead. They did think so at one time, but now when they see that prosperity. The Manhattan Company has labored it requires three attempts to properly draw up charges against a branch of the Department, and that every law drawn up by their Judiciary Committees, which has any important bearing upon the government of the Department, is obliged to be interpreted by some legal gentleman, they have given up all idea of the grand plan, and are content to remain the simple Board of Delegates.

ALLOWED .- The claims of William Free, before the Board of Examiners, were allowed to the amount of over $5,000. The scrip issued to Mr. Free was for work and labor performed in the Corporation Yard, for the fire department, and was well earned and justly due, and although his demands have been recognized at last, it speaks badly for the faith and credit of the city, to keep a workingman out of his hard earnings for so long a time, as in the present instance, being more than four years.

THE NEW BELL On 14's House was rung on Thursday evening. We were at the Sansome House at the time, and although the wind was against the sound, at that point, we heard it distinctly. It emits a sweet and melodious sound, and is in our opinion, infinitely superior to the mposition bells. We should like to have a large one purchased for a District Bell.

GEORGE H. HOSSEFROSS -The people's nomina ting committee have presented the name of Mr Streets, at the coming election. Mr. H. is one of his avocation as a mechanic since his advent here. He has been a member of the department since its first organization; twice elected its Chief, and resigned the position to visit the Atlantic States .-He has been Foreman of Monumental Engine Co. on Thursday and as the votes came from different companies in the department, it was a great compliment to him. Mr. Hossefross, is greatly esteemed by his friends, for the many manly virtues he possesses; and he stands before the community bearing a reputation for honorable attributes character, which any man might be proud of. In every station he has acquitted himself with ability and credit. He is kind hearted, generous and charity never goes unheeded. He is in reality a man of the people, and should he be successful in attaining his present aspirations, those who confided in him will have no cause to regret their preference. He will make a faithful public officer. and so far as the firemen are concerned, he will use his utmost exertions to advance their comfort in the performance of their arduous duties, compatible with the oath and obligations of his office.

MANHATTAN 2.—The benefit to this company, at the American Theatre, on Wednesday evening, was all that could be desired, and yielded the Manhattans' a handsome amount. We are glad of it, as it will throw in their hands the means to make | false in every particular. No such thing as a polsome very necessary and essential changes in their house, which will tend greatly to their growing men in favor of Mr. Burr, will vote for him, and under a geeat many disadvantages heretofore, but happily their energy, good management, and disposition, properly applied, is fast bringing them up to a position equal to the best in the Department. The house of No. 2 has been put in thorough repair, by the orders of the Chiet Engineer, and we hope it will not be long before the Fire and Water Committee, at the instance of the Chief, orders a new engine for the company, without waiting for the long delay attendant upon the sale of the old

ABOUT TIME.—We think it is about time the St. Francis Hook and Ladder Company did something in regard to the injury done to the premises of R. C. Brueninghausen & Co., druggists, by the running into the window of the truck of the company. Damage to the amount of $200 was done, and as yet the company have done but little towards reimbursing the firm in question. It was said the Board of Supervisors, at the instigation of the company, would attend to the matter, but they have not. Mr. G. A. Worn, the Foreman of St. Francis, should take this matter in hand and see that the parties injured have redress; otherwise it will reflect but little credit on his company. MONUMENTAL 6 .- The apparatus of this company has been taken down to the shop of Albert Folsom, on California street, preparatory to being thoroughly overhauled and repaired. The engine of No. 6 has been in use since July, 1854, and this is the first time the Company have really dispensed with her services. To have allowed her to remain out of repair any longer, would have been the means of rendering her almost entirely useless.

An adjourned stated meeting of the Board of CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO, met on Delegates was held on Tuesday evening, August

C. S. Biden, President pro tem, in the chair. The roll having been called, the President pre cm stated the meeting was called for the trial of Monumental Engine Co. No. 6, to answer certain harges, preferred by the Chief Engineer, by request of Pennsylvania Fire Co. No. 12.

Mr. Cobb, counsel for Monumental No. 6, said, hat previous to entering upon the charges preferred, he wished to call the attention of the Board to the laws governing the Department relative to charges and specifications. The law very distincty and expressly says that "a copy of the charges and specifications must be served upon the acused . " which had not been done in this case, as Monumental No. 6 never had received a copy or anything else appertaining to said charges. The law also says that "the charges and specifications must be serred upon the parties at least six days previous to the trial," which had also in this case een omitted; and under the circumstances, the Van Bokkelen of H. and L. 3, A. Mr. Cutter, counsel for the Department, in reply Mr. Cobb. said, that it was customary to serve the counsel far the accused with the charges and he hoped the technicality would not be taken ad-

Mr. Jones said, that as the charges had not been properly brought, he would move, that the trial be estponed until Thursday night; and also because ne members of the Board were interested in the onventions now in session, which would by that time be over, and they could attend to this case. Mr. Lynch said, he trusted sufficient time would be given the counsel for the Department to bring the charges in proper form, and would therefore amend the motion of Mr. Jones to adjourn, until Menday night next. Mr. Devoe offered an amendment to the amendment of Mr. Lynch, that the Board adjourn until Thursday week. Mr. Cobb said, that he, as counsel for the accused, protested against the action of this Board in endeavoring to bring charges upon charges. The President pro tem, called Mr. Cobb to oc der, and said that the motion was not debateable. Mr. Gough asked, if the motion as to time was

Trial by Fire Companies

We made every arrangement to receive full particulars of the playing match at Marysville, but ism was not of that description from some unaccountable reason our correspondence has not reached us; and we are compelled to rely on other means. The Express of Thursday,

The playing, according to all accounts, is the very best ever done in the State; and we doubt much if the playing of either the "Eureka," or the "Warrens," can be beat anywhere. The latter are entitled to the ribbons, and "Vigilant 9" must send them up. DEATH OF A FIREMAN.—The Buffalo Express The death of John Smith, a member of Live exertion—or rather we may say in consequence of an heroic effort to arrest the sacrifice of other people's property-furnishes one more to the already innumerable instances of the self-devotion of a gallant band of spirits who are to be found in every community, and whose only reward is in the cheerful and conscientious discharge of their duty. It is customary to pay the highest honors to those who perish on the battle-field in defence of man, but it is the man who disgraces their country, but to the fireman, the man who continually perils health, and life in the service of the brave deed, and of the generous self-devotion forgotten. FIRE-INCENDIARISM .- The Union of Wednesday, says: The frame buildings on the east side of Second street, between J and K streets, north of the alley—adjoining the one which was partially consumed on Sunday morning last—were fired and totally destroyed about half past three o'clock yesterday morning. In consequence of the recent frequent attempts to burn the premises, a watch was kept, but the party detailed for this service had left just previously to attend to the arrival of the San Francisco boat. Within five minutes after leaving, he heard the cry of fire, and returning, found the building in flames. The damage was nominal, the buildings being of inconsiderable value, and the stocks, furniture, etc., of tenants lights. The question now is, which will be the next locality to be visited by these midnight incendiaries? A ball or a lamp-post for one or two of them would speedily cure the entire fraternity.

Suspended.—J. J. Mallen, ex-Assistant Foreman of Hose Co. No. 27, says the New York Leader, was suspended in July for one year. He was called before the Board of Fire Commissioners to give reason why he should not be expelled for hav ing harbored in the company's bunk-room a stranger not belonging to the Fire Department. Mr. Mallen said the stranger had been introduced to him as a member of the Brooklyn Fire Department, and he did not know he was not a member The fact, however, was, that the person in question was a fugitive from justice at that time, and afraid of being arrested at his own house in Brooklyn on that night. The stranger turned out to be Patrick Lally, who was afterwards sent to prison for being accessory to the death of Mr. Simonson, of Brooklyn. We have every reason to be satisfied that Mr. Mallen was not aware of the charge ter of the man whom he gave a night's shelter, nor of the work he had been engaged in.

FIRES YESTERDAY .- The Sacramento Bee of the 23d, says: The alarm of fire yesterday morning at 3 o'clock was caused by the burning of the vacan building on the east side of Fifth street, between K and L. The building has been vacant for some time, and was of but trifling value. About 4 o'clock the one-story shanty on Second street, ad-joining Heywood's building, was discovered to be on fire, and within five minutes the building was destroyed. Two shanties adjoining were partially burned, but the prompt action of the firemen prevented any serious spread of the flames. The store in which the fire originated has not been occupied for some weeks, and the inference is that it was the work of an incendiary; in fact both were incendiary acts.

TRIAL OF FIRE ENGINES .- The Union of Wed. nesday says: Eureka Engine Company, No. 4, left for Marysville about 7 o'clock yesterday morning, on the steamer Governor Dana, with their engine, to contest for the second class prize offered by the State Agricultural Society. About forty members of the company dressed in uniform, accompanied the apearatus. The engine of Confidence Engine Company No. 1, a rickety concern, known as "Our Gal," was also forwarded on the same boat, to enter for the third class prize, it being anticipated that ro competitor would offer. This it will be remembered; was the engine that, by the impartial (?) award of the judges, carried off the first prize so honorably at the trial at the Fair at Stockton last year. Should there be any competitors, we may again anticipate "shenanigan."

IN LUCK.—The Sacramento Bee of Aug. 23d, says: The proprietor of Heywood's building was unwilling, for a long time, to insure his property, but after he departed for Victoria, he wrote to his agent here to insure, which he did, and the fire on Saturday night damaged his building to the extent of $200, which amount was paid to-day by A. K. Grim, agent for the Liverpool and London

CIRCULAR. THE SECOND INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION OF

THE SECOND INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION OF the Mechanic's Institute of the City of San Francisco will be held in that city in September next, commencing on WEDNESDAY, the list, and continuing open at least fifteen days.

The present Directory of the Institute, with the light of experience shed before them by the efforts of their prodecessors, and with the precedent already set establishing the fact, beyond a doubt, that an Industrial Exhibition can be gotten up in this city and conducted to a successful termination, enter upon the task before them with buoyant hopes and bright anticipations, entirely free from all apprehensions of failure in this, the second effort of the Institute. While it will be the constant aim of the members of the new Board to imitate the example of those of the old in their zeal, energy and harmonious action, it will be their steady care to avoid, if possible, any errors which experience may have detected in the working operations of the system before adopted; hoping thereby to enlist the hearty co-operation of all who may desire to become contributors to the display, and to secure the approving smiles and gentrous patronage of an appreciative public.

The advantages which have accrued from our first exhibition are so numerous and so obvious, as to have secured already to its projectors and those who have aided them in the enterprise, the hearty thanks and commendations of all who feel an interest in the progress and welfare of our State. That Exhibition presented in a tangible form unmistakable evidence of the rapid strides which had been and were still being made in the development of the Mechanical, Agricultural, Horticaltural and Mineral resources of our youthful State. It tended to the dissemination of correct information concerning our immense natural resources, and awakened in the minds of the imgenious new ideas concerning their development. The exhibit of what had been done, so plainly pointed out what still remained to be accomplished, that a spirit of emulation was at once aroused a an increasing emigration which at present is our great an an increasing emigration which at present is our great and only want.

It is earnestly hoped that the coming Fair will in no wise fall short of the attractiveness of the last; but, that on the contrary, a marked improvement will be visible in every department; and, to that end, a cordial invitation is extended for an exhibit of the products of every branch of industry, enbracing works of art of every description—inventions of every kind—choice specimens of ingenuity and skill—the delicate and beautiful handiwork of women—useful labor saving machines—implements of mining and husbandry—new models of machinery—the products of the quarry and the mine, of the hot-house, the orchard, the vine-yard, the garden and the field—in short, whatever nature or art can contribute, curiosity discover, or ingenuity can levise.

Persons throughout the State and adjacent Territories are requested to communicate such facts relative to the natural resources and the facilities for industrial pursuits in their respective districts as may be deemed by them important; also to give reliable information concerning the geology and minerology of their particular localities; and a committee of scientific and practical men will be appointed to prepare a report based upon the information thus derived. We cordially invite co-operation of all classes, believing that all are interested in making this an Exhibition worthy of general notice and admiration.

Medals and Diplomas will be awarded to the owners of such articles as may be deemed worthy of distinction, and we intend that the strictest impartiality and fairness shall be observed in the appointment of Judges and the distribution of awards. Persons throughout the State and adjacent Territories may continue to merit a share of public patronage.

OYSTERS—Raw, Roast, Fried, Pickled Stewed, etc.,

suit the palate of the Epicure.

The BAR will be found at all times supplied with the most choice brands of Wines. Ales and Liquors, administered in the most approved and polite manner.

Steam and Sulphur Baths!

Warm and cold Sea Baths—Swimming BATHS, and all kinds of MINERAL and ARTI-FICIAL BATHS for the Lungs and many other Diseases,

Meiggs' Wharf.

The first and only Sea Bathing place on the Pacific Ocean where every convenience is found, in the latest style, for the accommodation of Bathers and Invalids.

There is also attached a Warm Sea Bath, for Laidies of the Hebrew faith, where they can bathe according to their religion, and which is connected with the sea.

This institution has now been in operation one year, and it has not only satisfied the expectations of the proprietor. The throng of sufferers and bathers has increased daily, in consequence, the bathing facilities have been extended and enlarged, and several important improvements have been made. Each bather has a separate room, where he can be properly cooled and rested.

The use of the Sea Baths is not a palliative, but a positive remedy. It takes the disease at the root and cradicate it effectually. Hundreds of patients who used these baths according to the proper directions, have been haded and some disease that have besten all other remedies, have been cured by the use of these baths in a short time. Every kind of malady can be cured by using these baths, and it is unnecessary to enumerate them here.

In connection with the bathing establishment, is a HOTEL, containing a great many rooms elegantly fitted up and it is unnecessary to eaumerate team nere.

Whoever wants two Miniatures let them go some place else and have one taken, and if I don't produce a better one, I will forfeit the price of both Miniatures; and remember, my prices are only a little more than half those charged at some other establishments. I do not pretend at some other establishments. I do not pretend to have the finest finished rooms, but I do pretend to take better Pictures than can be taken any place else, and at low prices. My experience of upwards of twelve years in the Art has given me advantages, so that I will always be

R. H. VANCE,

PATENT AMBROTYPES To those who wish something New and BEAUTIFUL: — We have purchased the Patent Right of CUTTING AMBROTYPES for this State, and are now prepared to take them in a style unequalled in the United States, of any size, from the smallest minature to life size. I hereby denounce all Pictures taken on Glass in this city or State, and called Ambrotypes, as socus, and a raud upon the public, being a miserable imitation of the enuine article. I would say to all whe have been deceived and swindled with Bogus Pictures, not to condemn this new and beautiful invention until they have seen the ENUINE AMBROTYPES. They are said to be the most urable Picture known, as neither acids, water, or dampess of any kind, can affect them. Those having Daguer cotypes which they wish to preserve FOREVER, would o well to have them copied in Ambrotype. Great attention will be paid to GROUPING. Groups rom 2 to 30 can be made perfect. Persons can now be aken with Regalias, Military or Fireman dress, without naving the insignies or letters reversed. Children taken by this new process in less than one second.

We still continue to executeour splendidPremium Da-nd. We still continue to execute our splendid Premium Da-uerreotypes as usual. Having made great and extensive dditions to our Gallery, for the purpose of making and a blibiting our Ambrotype Pictures, we would be pleased have our work examined. Our Gallery is FREE to all.
